

The Center for Instructional Excellence
Faculty Club Luncheon presents

Learning and Literacy: 21st Century Higher Education Basics

Reading, writing, and arithmetic no longer fulfill student needs. Students must be multi-literate, not just in language, which is increasingly challenging in a mediated society, but also literate for other knowledge and practice. Computer literacy, math literacy, health literacy, media literacy—the world is complex, science and art in the 21st century are more complicated.

This luncheon features expert faculty from across the disciplines who teach and organize programs in literacy necessary for success in your classes, at Purdue, for careers, for life.
