

BIOLOGICAL HYDROGEN PRODUCTION FOR LOCAL ELECTRIC GENERATION

Use agricultural and food wastes to generate hydrogen that can then be used in a fuel cell or reciprocating engine to produce electricity locally.

- New technology is being developed to use agricultural and food wastes as a source of hydrogen.
- An energy system is being developed that will use the hydrogen to generate electricity in a fuel cell or reciprocating engine as well as balancing process energy needs.

